At the Old Horse Sale

By Sara Beaumont Kennedy

Copyright, 1905, by Sara Beaumont Kennedy

"You must not go in there. It is no place for you." There was more than protest in his voice. There was positive command, which perhaps, was the reason why she walked directly under the auctioneer's red flag into the express office, already thronged with idle, curious buyers.

"I never was at anything more exciting than a dry goods bargain sale. This will be positively like Monte Carlo."

"Our uncle will disapprove"—

"Of course he will. He disapproves of most things I do since you took up the role of social mentor for the family. That year abroad spoiled you, Adolphus. You have never been endurable since you took to patent uppers and a monocle. Now, Nick would have brought me in here without a word of remonstrance and lent me every penny out of his pocket if I needed it to bid with—lent me even his car fare and walked home uncomplainingly and carried my parcels."

"If he had not happened to see an old woman or a lame cat to help over the crossing, in which case, very likely, he would have laid the parcels down and quite forgotten to pick them up."

"Perhaps, for Nick is a bit absent-minded, but he is perfectly adorable when it comes to giving a girl her own way."

"My brother is happy in winning your good opinion. It is my misfortune"—

"No, it's your fault; you are so frightfully conventional. Dear me, what curious people!"

"They are the drift from the street. None of our set ever"—

"There, the auctioneer is beginning again. It will be perfectly delightful to buy something and not have the least idea what it is—so weird and mysterious!"

"Nellie, surely you are not going to bid out loud in this crowd!"

"I certainly am. There is no harm in it, and I am sick to death of the right angle rules by which you and uncle measure my life. Wonder what that woman found in her parcels? There goes up a bandbox. I shall bid on that."

"Nellie, don't!" he first commanded, then entreated vehemently, but she was as a deaf adder that stoppeth her ears.

"Fifty cents," she called, in answer to the auctioneer's challenge, at the same time stepping upon an empty box by the wall, so that she was in plain view of the whole crowd.

"Seventy-five cents!" screamed a feminine voice across the hall.

"One dollar," flashed back Nellie, her color rising, her eyes shining, for her cousin's voice came up to her in agitated whispers.

"One fifty," came from her opponent.

"Two dollars," cried Nellie, pushing Adolphus' hand from her sleeve.

"Three dollars," shrieked the other woman, nervously counting the change in her purse. No one else was bidding, the entire crowd having centered its attention on the nervous woman and the "swell" girl, and there were cheers and counter cheers as the bids rose dollar by dollar until at last the coveted box was knocked down to Nellie.

She was still laughing and flushed with her triumph when they emerged from the door over which flew the red flag, but Adolphus felt miserable and compromised, and this feeling was not abated when he saw the astonishment in the eyes of Miss Curtis, whose landau happened at that moment to pass, for Miss Curtis was the personification of rigid conventionality. He counted the meeting as one more misfortune in an unlucky day.

Nellie's excitement waned as they walked, and by the time they entered her uncle's gate she was strangely silent. Adolphus evidently took this for a hopeful sign, for presently he cleared his throat, adjusted his monocle and began:

"Nellie, we must talk seriously. The time has come"—

"No, it hasn't come," she said, interrupting him good naturedly, "so stop right there. I don't know whether this is a lecture or a proposal of marriage—your private talks with me vibrate between these two subjects—but I am in no mood for either. For heaven's sake, Adolphus, throw that glass away. I hate to be spied at like that!"

With a reproachful sigh he removed the offending glass and said: "Nick not only lectured you yesterday; he positively scolded you, and"—

"And I deserved it, but I answered him back spitefully, like the little beast I am, and he—he hasn't even noticed me since." She turned her head so that he did not see the quiver of her red lips, the passionate protest of her eyes.

All their set knew that her dictatorial old uncle intended she should marry Adolphus, who satisfied his social ambitions, while Nick, who cared nothing for society, smoked a pipe and forgot to have his trousers creased, was a thorn in the old man's side. Between these two were constant disagreements, which Nellie had hitherto managed to make up, but yesterday there had been a quarrel of unusual violence, and there was even some talk of Nick's leaving the house. It was of this she had been thinking as she followed her purchase home.

"Adolphus," she said as they mounted the steps, "can't you do something—anything—to patch up this new quarrel between Nick and uncle? It isn't Nick's fault that he is—that he was—was born different from you and uncle."

"I quite agree with my uncle about this slumming business. A man in Nick's position owes something to—to appearances."

"Stuff!" she scoffed and ran to him into the house.

In the library, to stem the tide of Adolphus' wooing, she hastily opened her box and lifted out the contents, a quaint and curious bonnet of a decade ago, a bonnet with a scooped brim piled high with flowers and nodding plumes. As she put it on her head, shrieking with laughter, her uncle and Nick entered the room, both of them showing in their manner strong excitement. The girl paused in her performing and paled at the sight of the stern faces. Her uncle saw her strange headgear and angrily demanded its origin. Adolphus explained very carefully, not forgetting his own expostulations against the caprice. The old man turned wrathfully upon the girl.

"You and Nick are of a piece in your attempts to humiliate and make a laughingstock of me. My niece, the female head of my family, bidding at a common auction against a washerwoman! Take that hideous thing out of my sight!"

But the spoiled girl only made him a daring little courtesy which set all the bonnet's variihued plumes a-nodding. Nick crossed the room to her side.

"Nellie," he said wistfully, "I am going away for good; my uncle and I have agreed it is best. He has forbidden me to speak to you of marriage (and that is the cause of our quarrel), but I love you with all my heart. You know what I have to offer you, dear, but will you come with me as my wife?"

It was as if a bomb had exploded at the old man's feet. The words of interruption he would have uttered were only splutterings of anger. By the table the girl paused, trembling and going from white to red. Then her uncle found his voice.

"Out of my sight, sir! Your disobedience shall cost you dearly. I disown you—I cut you off without a penny for your impudence! Your inheritance shall be"—he glanced about for the most worthless thing in sight, and his eye lit on the empty box on the table—"that trash, sir! Take your inheritance and go."

He was pointing to the door, but Nick's eyes were on Nellie and into them there flashed a radiant joy as at a sign from her he approached the table.

"You give me this box and its contents as my fortune, sir?"

"Yes."

"Then I am content, for you have given me that which I most desire in all the whole world."

The old man looked sharply at the two smiling faces. "What mummery is this?" he demanded. Then he, too, approached the table and peered into the box where Nick's eyes were fastened. "What is that?" he cried, adjusting his glasses.

"If you please, sir, it is Nick's heritage," answered Nellie shyly.

For in the side of the pasteboard box was a hole through which the rogue of a girl had thrust her dimpled hand.

And that was how Nellie obtained her uncle's consent and how Nick won his heart's desire as the aftermath of the old horse sale.

Difficulty and Ease.

There is not that conflicting antagonism between difficulty and ease that is commonly imagined. Many persons count the former as the bane of existence, to be avoided as far as possible, and the latter an agreeable friend, whose presence is always to be courted.

On the contrary, however, they are both elements of human life intended to work in harmony with each other, and thus to produce a beneficial effect upon us that neither one could effect alone. Every difficulty rightly treated leads by a direct road to ease. How hard and perplexing were the first trembling steps of the infant as he tottered to his mother's knee! A year or two later and the very easiest thing the healthy child can do is to leap, to run, to bound. Now he is slowly learning the forms of the letters and painfully endeavoring to trace them with the pen, but in a short time he will read and write without an effort. So with everything he undertakes to do through life. Its difficulty when courageously accepted and coped with gradually yields to its easy and smooth performance.

His Brand of Birds.

Nearly every man, woman or child who goes to Jefferson City pays a visit to the penitentiary, for, though a gloomy, forbidding place, it has a strong interest. While acting as assistant city counselor Jacques Harvey was at the capital on some legal business and wandered up to look over the "pen." He joined a party making the rounds, one member of which was a little girl. She became interested in the convict who handles the revolving cage that lets visitors in and out, and stopped to talk to him:

"'Do you find it dull here, sir?' she said.

"'Indeed I do, miss,' the convict answered.

"'Still,' said the child, 'the singing of the birds helps to relieve the monotony, doesn't it?'

"'Singing of the birds?' said the convict in a puzzled voice.

"'Yes,' said the little girl.

"'What birds?' asked the man.

"The well meaning but ignorant child with a hopeful smile replied:

"'The little jail birds. They must be a great comfort to you.'"—Kansas City Independent.

A Tooth.

A tooth is a living structure. Inside of each tooth is a cavity filled with pulp, which gives it life. Nerves and blood vessels connect this pulp with the general system and circulation of the body. The ivory surrounding the pulp is covered over by a surface of enamel. Both ivory and enamel are harder than any other bones, because they contain a greater quantity of bone earth. Enamel on the tops of the teeth is one-sixteenth of an inch thick. It consists of little six sided prisms placed side by side and held together by an exquisitely fine cement. The pulp of the tooth becomes diseased and toothache follows. Tartar is a secretion made by three glands in the mouth, full of small, living organisms, which assimilate matter in the saliva and deposit it on the teeth in the shape of phosphate of lime.

Living Mummies.

Living mummies exist in Tibet, near Gyangtse, at a spot the name of which in English may be rendered as "the Cave of Happy Misery." There are about twenty small caves in the solid rock, each built up in front with stones and mortar. They have padlocked doors, tiny drains and small holes just sufficient for a man to pass his hand through. In these cells men are buried for life with the idea of thus "attaining merit." Once interned they are, in extreme cases, never seen again by mortal eye. Even the hand which they stretch forth from the small hole for their daily dole of food is covered by a glove. They speak to no one and no one speaks to them. Even their death is only made known when they fail for several days to stretch out the hand for food.

Persian Way of Eating Watermelon.

"The ordinary Persian bill of fare sounds something like the banquets described in fairy tales," said a man who has spent some time in the orient. "While traveling in that country I found that the best overture to a wayside repast is a watermelon, not cut in slices, as is done in this country, but eaten like an egg, one end being cut off and the contents eaten with a wooden spoon, the roseate fluid trickling all the time to the bottom and affording a fragrant drink when the first course is over."

The Potato.

The potato is one of the most valuable plants we have. Besides being one of the most necessary articles of food, it has a variety of other uses. A great quantity of the starch used in our laundries is made from it, and after the starch has all been separated from the pulp what is left is used in the manufacture of boxes. From the stems and leaves of the plant a fluid that produces sleep is made. In many places bread, cake and puddings are made of potato flour.

"All right," said the hard hearted merchant. "Please close the door behind you when you go out."

THE REAL QUESTION.

The real question of disease is "Can I be cured?" If you or anyone dear to you is losing strength, flesh, energy and vitality, if you are wise you will not spend time trying to figure out just what name to call the disease by.

It is almost impossible to draw the line where debility and weakness merge into consumption. Your trouble may not be consumption to-day, but you don't know what it may become to-morrow. Hundreds of people have been restored to robust health by Dr. Pierce's marvelous "Golden Medical Discovery" after reputable physicians had pronounced them consumptive beyond hope.

Were they in consumption? Nobody can ever know. The important point is that they were hopelessly ill but this matchless "Discovery" restored and saved them.

"I was not able to do hardly any work at all," says Mrs. Jennie Dingman, of Vanburen, Kalkaska Co., Mich., in a most interesting letter to Dr. Pierce. "I had pain in my left side and back, and had headache all the time. I tried your medicine and it helped me. Last spring I had a bad cough; I got so bad I had to be in bed all the time.

"My husband thought I had consumption. He wanted me to see a doctor, but I told him if it was consumption they could not help me. We thought we would try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and before I had taken one bottle the cough was stopped and I have had no more of it returning. Your medicine is the best I have taken."

Write to Dr. R. V. Pierce. He will send you good, fatherly, professional advice, in a plain sealed envelope, absolutely free. His nearly 40 years experience as chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel, at Buffalo, N. Y., has made him an expert in chronic diseases.

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Vote For City Hall Bonds on Monday.

It is the duty of every citizen in Sonoma to go to the polls on Monday and vote for the City Hall Bonds. Do not think your vote will not matter, or that you have done your duty because you cast a vote at the holding of the last election. Go to the polls once again and carry the bond issue by a bigger majority than before. The question which arose and made the bonds invalid is one which has arisen in the case of many municipalties, but Sonoma should not be discouraged by the short delay occassioned thereby, but should go to it again with renewed enthusiasm and confidence. There is some opposition smoldering, and if the conservative and progressive voter neglects to cast his vote on Monday, the opposition will seize the opportunity to make itself felt and through thoughtlessness, we might find ourselves outdone by the anti-bond faction. The voter must remember this and feel it his duty to exercice his citizenship.

Many men are all too careless of their prerogatives as taxpayers in their municipalities, and as a result cities fall into the hands of grafters and silurians. The shrewd politician handles the forces he knows will line up and come out, consequently machine politics are a success. Cities thus come to be in the hands of disreputables, and shameful grafts go on in spite of expose. The good, intelligent, conservative per cent of citizens are responsible for this, for with all their virtues, they have erred in that they have neglected to do one of their greatest duties. Many a city has been dubbed rotten or antiquated because the sound and progressive voters, through thoughtlessness, gave the opposition opportunity to tie up progress or to honeycomb the municipality with rascality.

It is not because men are growing worse that cities fall prey to wickedness. Men are growing better, but their sense of duty as citizens does not seem to increase in proportion. They confound good citizenship with doing right as individuals in commercial dealings, and in the care and treatment of their families. This makes a higher grade of citizenship, but if citizenship is not active, it fails of its purpose. The prerogative of citizenship must be exercised, or it is of little efficiency.

The business of government is today a far more serious thing than it was in the day of benevolent despots. Our government is what the majority of our people make it, no matter what kind of a majority it is. The vote of one individual is as good as another, once he is qualified to the satifaction of the laws. The idealist, who would have a Utopia, has no more right individually than has the grafter, who would have San Francisco "the curbstone of hell." The idealist or grafter get power only through becoming the nucleus of a party, or faction, or gang. Every citizen has the right to affiliate with the best faction, but he must do so in order to be an effective citizen and get the right kind of government. In some parts of the country self-government seems a failure. It seems to be an ideal condition for which many of our people are unprepared. Government in the school-room would be better if each individual governed himself, but the youth of today must be governed by control outside of himself, not that he cannot control himself, but because he will not do so. Just so with many people of today. They are controlled because they will neither control themselves or others, so we have political parties and political leaders. They are both neccessary, but good government must be secured through the realization of political duties by high minded and right thinking citizens, and their alliance with unselfish administrators.

Congressman Duncan McKinlay's report of real conditions in Japan, shows that he is making a great study of a nation, with whom it is destined that the Pacific Coast will be brought into closer relationship, and he will be in a position to give a solution to all problems that will arise therefrom. The problems are bound to come, and the Pacific Coast will be most vitally affected. Duncan McKinlay, with all his keen insight and excellent judgment, will be the only Pacific Coast congressman who will have the situation in hand. He has an understanding of Japan's policy and has at heart the interest of this coast. Congressman McKinlay declares that Japan is most friendly to America, and speaks highly of the honor shown the Taft party, of which he is a member. He says that Japan is a wonderful nation, and one of much industrial potentiality. She has learned to work with one hand and fight with the other. Commercial rivalry between Japan and America is inevitable and the Pacific Slope may yet need tariff protection from the Japanese industry. Marquis Ito had the following to say to our congressman in regard to the labor problem: "Japan needs all her own people. No where can she get labor equal to them. Therefore it is our policy to keep our laborers at home to aid in the building up of the empire."

The purchase of the Vallejo and Napa electric line by Boston capitalists, and the announcement that it is one of the best paying transportation properties of the size in the state is encouraging. It shows what is possible for Sonoma along these lines, and what the Sonoma Valley Interurban company is probably working toward. The announcement is made that these same purchasers of the Vallejo and Napa line are looking for further investments in the way of electric lines and that they intend to build a series of feeders in the northern part of the state.

MUSICIANS ARE UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Herman Schieck and Miss Alice E. Severance Wed in San Francisco

Herman Schieck, the well-known musician of Glen Ellen, was united in marriage this week in San Francisco to Miss Alice E. Severance, a talented pianist and vocalist of the metropolis. The wedding of this musical couple comes as a pleasant surprise to their many Sonoma Valley friends.

Mr. Schieck has been playing the violin in Glen Ellen from time to time, and has always been accompanied by the young lady he has taken for his bride.

Mrs. Scheick had been directing an orchestra in San Francisco, and is recognized in musical circles as an artist. When only a girl her talent attracted such attention that she became the protege of one of the foremost musicians on the coast.

Mr. Schieck is not only a talented violinist, but is also a good business man, and very popular on account of his genial personality.

Rudyard Kipling Sends Criticism of Jack London to Capt. Boyes

Rudyard Kipling, the distinguished English writer, has sent to Capt. H. E. Boyes of this place, a copy of "Mainly About People," an English weekly containing a criticism of Jack London and a copyrighted autobiography of great interest. Kipling's paper was accompanied by a note asking Capt. Boyes if he had run across London in this valley.

The editor of M. A. P. has commented on London and his work in a most complimentary fashion, declaring him to be a genius and acknowledging English appreciation of him. He also speaks with admiration of London's triumph over adverse circumstances, and of his broad creed of equality.

The entire criticism means a great deal, coming as it does from a conservative English pen.

Jurors Drawn to Try Tannery Case

The following are among the names drawn in Judge Burnett's department of the Superior Court Monday to try the case of The State of California vs. The Levin Tannery Company, which is on trial today: H. Rubke, Schellville; Otto Rufus, Sonoma; A. Froment, Glen Ellen; Frank Weaver, El Verano and Chas. Filippini, Merazzo.

The defendant company is charged with polluting the waters of Santa Rosa creek.

Scrofula
Is very often acquired, though generally inherited. Bad hygiene, foul air, impure water, are among its causes. It is called "the soil for tubercles," and where it is allowed to remain tuberculosis or consumption is pretty sure to take root.

Destructive Forest Fire

A fierce forest fire swept over A. Pinelli's mountain ranch, about two miles northwest of town last Saturday afternoon, and before it was gotten under control destroyed a large quantity of stove wood which had been cut and corded up, preparatory to being hauled into town. Mr. Pinelli's loss is estimated at several hundred dollars.

Throat Coughs
A tickling in the throat; hoarseness at times; a deep breath irritates it;—these are features of a throat cough. They're very deceptive and a cough mixture won't cure them. You want something that will heal the inflamed membranes, enrich the blood and tone up the system ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴

ANOTHER ELECTRIC RAILWAY FOR SONOMA

To Run From Lakeport to San Pablo Bay—Capitalized for Over Three Millions.

If all the projected electric railways through this section are ever built Sonoma Valley will be gridironed with them.

Now comes the Clear Lake and Southern Railroad Company, which is to operate an electric line through Lake, Napa, Sonoma and Marin counties. This company filed articles with the Secretary of State last Tuesday for its railway system and power plant. The capital stock is $3,500,000.

It is proposed to run the line from Lakeport via the principal towns in Sonoma and Napa counties to Reclamation. From that point branch lines will be extended to Petaluma and San Rafael.

The directors are Guy C. Calden of Oakland; Joseph P. Lucey, W. E. Cashman, Wm. T. Love of San Francisco, and Kent C. Seymour of Ross Valley, Marin county.

Calden has taken $143,000 worth of stock in the road and $100,000 worth in the power plant. The other directors have subscribed $100 each.

Funeral Services at St. Francis' Church

The funeral of Miss Mary Rose Cassidy, who passed away last week at the home of her brother, was held from St. Francis' Church on Sunday. Rev. Father Leahy said mass for the departed one and many friends and a number of relatives were present at the services. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. Messrs. Kearney, Graham, Wall, Watt and Kearney were the pall-bearers.

Deceased was the daughter of B. F. Cassidy, and sister of George, Frank and the Misses Cassidy of San Francisco. She had been ill for the past three months at the home of her brother in this valley, but bore her sickness with sweet submission and endurance, characteristic of her throughout her affliction. The family have the sympathy of their many friends in their sorrow.

Benefit for Sufferers by Fire

The ball given at the Bellevue Hotel last Thursday evening for the benefit of P. Forni and family, who were rendered homeless by the fire in El Verano last Tuesday, was a financial success. Quite a neat sum was realized for the sufferers. Another ball for their benefit takes place at El Verano Villa this evening. Every charitably disposed person should purchase a ticket and thus assist this unfortunate family, consisting of father, mother and four children, who were deprived of almost everything by the fire fiend except the clothes on their backs.

Claude Brownell, a lieutenant in the San Francisco Fire Department, is spending a few weeks at this place.

Felici Clerici returned home from San Francisco Thursday, after having spent several days in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Odone returned from San Francisco Sunday evening, after having spent a few weeks at that place.

Mrs. T. H. Baines and son Norman have returned home, after spending several weeks in Seattle visiting friends.

A. Chance, Wm. Hugh and Roy Chance will leave for Mendocino county Monday, where they will spend a few weeks camping.

Johnnie Laugonyou and Johnnie Greene, our two good looking young barbers, did fine work at the fire last Tuesday, and Hooligan is beginning to think that these young fellows should be in the San Francisco Fire Department.

The many friends of P. Forni, who lost his home and saloon on Tuesday by fire, sympathize with him. Much credit is due to Maurice Cunningham, a San Francisco fireman, who stayed in the house till it fell through. Mr. Cunningham will long be remembered for his work and bravery and the people of this town wish to thank him. The fire caused much excitement and nearly burned a number of other buildings. Wm. and Jack Kearney saved the saloon of Felici Clerici. Had it not been for the quick judgment of these two men in going to the top of this saloon and throwing water on the coming flames, the place would have been burned, which would have led to the burning of several other places.

"HAPPY HOOLIGAN."

SETTLED AFTER LONG LITIGATION

The T. L. Schell Estate Comes to a Close After Being in Courts for 29 Years

Monday in Judge Coffey's Court in San Francisco the T. L. Schell estate was finally settled after 29 years of litigation. By the terms of the settlement the Schell heirs retain the home place at Schellville and 400 acres of high land. All the creditors, of whom there are many, will, according to the settlement, receive every dollar coming to them.

For the past five years Fred Schell of this valley has been working to effect this settlement with the creditors.

The litigation over this estate has attracted wide-spread attention and has gone through the various courts of this state.

EL VERANO HAS DISASTROUS FIRE

Peter Forni's Hotel and Saloon Burn to the Ground and Flames Threaten Other Buildings

El Verano had a big fire on Tuesday afternoon, when the saloon and hotel of Peter Forni, this side of the depot, took fire. The flames fanned by a stiff breeze threatened surrounding properties. The fire was caused by the accidental spreading of a fire in the yard, which had been kindled for the purpose of destroying rubbish. Although the flames were discovered almost as soon as the building took fire, the entire structure went up like a tinder box, and as there are no fire-fighting facilities in El Verano, the Sonoma Fire Department was hastily summoned to stay the progress of the flames, which looked as if they would take the Lounibos winery, F. Clerci's saloon and L. Odone's roadhouse.

Morris Cunningham, a San Francisco fireman spending his vacation at El Verano, directed the fire-fighters before the arrival of the Sonoma Department and succeeded in saving the piano and a few other contents of the doomed buildings. He was suffocated, however, by the heat and smoke while fighting the fire and had to be removed to his hotel, where prompt medical attention was all that saved his life.

When the Sonoma firemen arrived they worked like Trojans, and finally saved the surrounding properties from destruction. The thermometer registered over 100 degrees, and after going two miles in the heat and then fighting fire, many of the firemen were fairly fagged out.

At one time it was thought that F. Clerici's saloon and Louis Odone's resort were doomed, but by the heroic efforts of the volunteer fire fighters both places were saved from the flames. Had these places caught fire a general conflagration would have followed.

Mr. Forni carried no insurance on the property which burned down and his loss is estimated at several thousand dollars. His many friends regret very much his misfortune, as he built the hotel only a few months ago and had spent considerable money on it.

Two recent grass fires in the vicinity of the Knight ranch and the Wall place caused considerable excitement in those neighborhoods.

GLEN ELLEN

By Aurora.

Mr. L. Paine made a flying trip to Sonoma Wednesday.

Miss McCormick of Hollister is visiting with Miss Celia Crepin.

Judge Carroll Cook has sold his grape crop to Mr. Frank Lemoine.

Miss Perle Allen is one of the delegates to the convention at Palo Alto.

Mr. Froment made a flying trip to San Francisco on business this week.

Mrs. W. Van der Water has closed her ice cream parlors for the season.

Mr. Kentuckey and George Bremmer were visiting in Glen Ellen Sunday.

Mr. Tom Durbin, manager of the Cook ranch, had business in Sonoma Wednesday.

Rev. and Mrs. Chakurian have gone to Palo Alto to attend the annual church convention.

Miss Lizzie Clark will attend the convention in San Francisco the latter part of the week.

Miss Carrie Lemoine came up from San Rafael and spent Saturday and Sunday with her folks.

Miss Helen Littlejohn, who has been visiting with Mrs. Thos. Johnson, has returned to Oakland.

Mrs. Alexander, formerly an old resident of Kenwood, but now of Portland, is visiting with Mrs. Wm. Jones.

Mrs. McIntyre, who has been spending several days at her summer cottage on O'Donnell avenue, returned to the city Sunday.

Wm. Youngman, Shirley McCormick and Charley Paine attended the Christian Endeavor rally at Santa Rosa Wednesday.

Mr. Kundy of Wildwood vineyard has started making wine, and the grapes have 25 per cent of sugar, but he has less than half a crop.

Our congenial baggage-master on the C. N. W. R. R., Mr. Goddagger, has been confined to his bed the past week with throat trouble.

H. J. Chauvet started making wine Monday. So far he has purchased about 250 or 300 tons of grapes, which are holding out well in sugar.

Mrs. Mary Pieratt, one of the old pioneers of Glen Ellen, is very ill. Dr. Crepin is attending her. We all hope she will be quite well again, soon.

Ellenwood Camp, W. O. W. will give a farce, "Love by Moonlight," and a dance when they move into their new hall in the very near future.

Mr. Wm. Behler, while working in Mr. Kundy's wine cellar, cut his leg to the bone just above the knee last Friday and has been laid up for four days.

Mr. Fred Green of the San Francisco Police Department, who bought the old Wright ranch in Nunn's canyon, is going to make a stock ranch of the place.

Mr. Herman Schieck of Glen Ellen was married last Sunday to Miss Severance of San Francisco, who is an accomplished young lady. All extend best wishes to this young couple.

Mrs. A. E. Gage has been in San Francisco several days this week, and judging from the number of packages she brought with her, she must be getting ready for the ladies' fair, which is to be given in the near future.

The California Brick and Pottery Company of Glen Ellen has put in a lot of new machinery and has started up full force, making a very fine quality of Milwaukee brick, for which they have more orders than they can fill at present, and they are turning out 35,000 per day.

NOBLE WOMAN LAID TO REST

Mrs. Granville S. Harris Rests in Peaceful Earth—Her Funeral Impressive and the Largest in Years

The funeral of Mrs. Granville S. Harris, who died on Wednesday of last week, took place from her late residence on Broadway at one o'clock Saturday and was the largest funeral held here in many years. The last sad rites were beautifully impressive. Three ministers of the gospel were in attendance, and also the ladies of Valley of the Moon Chapter of the Eastern Star and many Masonic members. A choir composed of Mrs. Palstine, Miss Fraser and Messrs. Prussia and Cunningham sang.

Two hundred friends and acquaintances came to the sorrow-stricken home to pay their last respects to the deceased and to comfort the bereaved ones with words of solace and consolation. With them they brought the most beautiful flowers of the season as tributes of the esteem and affection with which they regarded that most noble of wives and mothers, who has passed to the great beyond.

Beautiful words of eulogy were spoken over the bier by the officiating minister, and every heart felt the truth of the words spoken for the departed one and silently prayed that solace might come to the bereaved family.

At Mountain Cemetery, where the interment took place, the Eastern Star ladies conducted impressive services.

"Shrined with many a sweet, sad thought,
That loved one's memory lingers still."

GRAND BALL FOR NATIONAL GUARDS.

Agua Caliente Springs Will be Scene of Gaiety To-Night and To-Morrow.

Two hundred and fifty national guards and about forty officers are expected from San Francisco today by Theodor Richards of Agua Caliente Springs. The soldier boys will go into camp at Caliente and on Sunday will give a big sham battle.

They will make things lively around the popular resort, and the swimming tank and dancing pavilion will be the scene of much gaiety tonight.

The grand ball will be a special feature this evening, with good music and the gallant officers and soldiers present. A large crowd is expected.

Broken Engagement.

The engagement of Miss Genieve Peters, a sister of Mrs. Will Ashe of Glen Ellen, to Arthur Duncan of Stockton has been broken off almost on the eve of the wedding. Although the invitations were out and the bride-to-be had a beautiful trousseau and a home built for her in Piedmont the marriage will not take place. Presents have been returned and invitations recalled.

Religious differences are said to be the cause of the breaking of the engagement.

Miss Peters often visited the Will Ashes at their home near Glen Ellen.

Will Said to be a Forgery.

The Harper children, who formerly lived at Schellville, may shortly come into the big estate of their grand aunt, the late Mrs. Albrecht, which they once fought for in the courts with Theodore Bell as their attorney. Mrs. Albrecht left a will giving everything to a Sarah Borland of San Francisco, and the Harper children were unable to break it. Now, it seems, the will was a forgery, and the Harper heirs may yet get their rights.

An Informal Lecture

[Original.]

"At college," she said as they wandered by the brookside, "we had the same curriculum they have at universities for men."

"You mean," he replied, "that at universities for men they have the same curriculum you had at college."

She looked up sidewise at him, a slight knitting on her fair brow, a disdainful smile on her exquisitely turned lips.

"What college colors do you wear?" she asked.

"I am not a university graduate."

The knitting on her brow and the disdainful smile on her lips gave place to a look of superiority.

"I sometimes fear," he added thoughtfully, "that we have too much education."

She deigned no reply to this and when she spoke again made it appear this his remark was not worthy of a reply.

"I have but one fault," she said, "to find with uneducated people. What they have failed to get they covet. I have known many uneducated persons to show positive jealousy of those having a college training."

"That's human. However, I fancy such persons would be equally jealous of anything else they did not possess."

The man was certainly very obtuse; she must make her meaning plainer.

"Do you think," she said, "that if you were a college graduate you would consider there was too much education?"

She looked up at him again, this time with an amused smile. Surely her question was a home thrust, and her companion received it with a perplexed look. He seemed to have difficulty in framing a reply.

"That remark of mine about too much education," he said at last, "sounds heterodox, I admit. The question is a deep one, and we can't look at it merely on the surface. Among the working classes education has produced a dissatisfaction with their station tending to make them criminals."

She thought what a pity it was that her companion had not been educated. He seemed to be a natural thinker.

"I don't mean," he continued, "that this view is to be considered final. There is much to be said on the other side. I have merely used it to explain my position."

"If that position is correct, why do enormously rich men give such large sums for the endowment of universities and libraries?"

"There's where your own argument comes in. Enormously rich men usually have not spent much time in study, and they obey a law of human nature to magnify the advantages of that which they do not possess. Personally I prefer the course of the late banker, George Peabody, who built tenements for the poor."

"Do you know," she said after a period of thoughtful silence, "the practical character of your remarks is quite new to me?"

"That's because you have spent four years at college."

"H-m," she said again, ruffled. "You postgraduates cannot conceal your prejudice against the university."

"The university, though it has been in a transition state for many years, is still defective. The grub has not yet become the butterfly."

"What a contemptuous comparison!"

"My own desire is to see the university turn out persons in larger proportion fitted for practical occupations."

"Oh, yes, you practical, uneducated people are constantly trying to drag all down to your own business standard. The Greek poets, the Latin classics, are nothing to you; you must reduce everything to dollars and cents."

"The dollars and cents are of great importance to the masses."

The girl made no further reply. She considered that she could never assimilate with the views of a man who had never fallen under the influence of university life and it would be useless to try.

"What is your business?" she asked by way of turning the subject.

"I manage to make a poor living trying to beat the principles of social science into young men's heads. I am a professor in Z. university."

The young lady, the ink on whose diploma was scarcely dry, stopped short and faced him.

"Do you mean to tell me," she said with rising indignation, "that you are Professor T——, who has given lectures outside your college?"

"I make a little money that way."

"Why did you tell me that you are not a graduate?"

"Because I am not. I was injured on the university football team near the end of my senior year and didn't take my degree."

"But surely you took a postgraduate course to fit yourself for your profession."

"I attended lectures abroad, but did not stop for a degree. Degrees don't add anything to one's stock of knowledge."

"I see. In lecturing to your class next term on social science I would recommend an honest treatment of those they meet at summer resorts."

"I have not treated you dishonestly. I told you my business the moment you asked me."

"You permitted me to fall into a trap."

"My dear young lady, you have fallen into no trap. You have conceptions common to recent graduates. Perhaps this conversation may give you an experience it would otherwise have taken years to acquire."

"I believe you are right," she said after a pause, "and I thank you."

A Vegetable Caterpillar.

In New Zealand and Australia they have an animal vegetable oddity which cannot be equaled by any other animate or inanimate object upon the earth's surface. It is the queerest of the many antipodean wonders and paradoxes and for the want of a better name has been called the "bulrush caterpillar" or "vegetable worm." The native Tasmanian name for the oddity is aweto-hotete. The aboveground portion of this vegetable worm is a fungus of the order sphaeria, which grows to a height of six or eight inches. When pulled up by the root this fungus is found to consist of a large caterpillar, showing head, segments and breathing holes—every detail of the grub being perfectly preserved. On examination the interior of the caterpillar is found to be composed of a "punky" looking substance, really the root of the fungus, which has cremated every fiber of what was once a living, breathing creature's anatomy. In all the instances which Buckland records, the sphaeria had made its attack in the fold of skin between the second and third segments of the caterpillar and had replaced all the animal substance of the creature's body with a hard brown vegetable growth resembling the fungoid growths on blackberry and other vines.

Veils in Churches.

During the tenth century no woman was allowed to appear at church without a veil. It had to be a real veil, too, covering and concealing the features in order that the prayers and meditations of the men might not be disturbed by the contemplation of feminine loveliness. There was a tradition that the origin of the custom was in an order from a great French saint. When a young man he met a little girl with features so noble and beautiful that, although he was many years her senior, he immediately fell in love with her because she resembled a young lady to whom he had been engaged years before, but who died in his arms. The man and the child separated, and he became a priest. Many years later he saw her in the congregation just as he was entering the pulpit to preach, and the sight disturbed him to such an extent that his sermon was a failure, and he ordered all the women thenceforth to wear veils.

Excursions to the East at Half Fare

During the coming summer months rare opportunity will be given to visit eastern cities at a minimum expense.

Tickets will be sold by the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad at practically half the regular rates, or one fare for the round trip from California points to Denver, Omaha, Kansas City, Memphis, St. Louis, Chicago and many other points. For a slight extra cost trip may be made via Portland with a free stop-over at the Lewis and Clarke Fair.

The world-famed scenery of the Denver & Rio Grande needs no introduction to most travelers. The Canon of the Grande, the Eagle River Canon, the Canon of the Arkansas, the Black Canon of the Gunnison, the Royal Gorge, and Pike's Peak, form but a part of that glorious panorama, all of which is viewed by daylight from the new observation cars with open tops—as one passenger said, "It is just like touring in an auto."

Through sleeping cars to all principal points east.

Mr. W. J. Shotwell, General Agt., D. & R. G. R. R. Co., 625 Market street, San Francisco, will, on application, quote lowest fares, arrange sleeping car accomodations and all details of your trip, and send you free some beautifully illustrated travel books. Write today.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with one Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleburne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some souse meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one twenty-five cent bottle cured the three of us." For sale by Shoults & Co.

Cured of Lame Back After 15 Years of Suffering

"I had been troubled with lame back for fifteen years and I found a complete recovery in the use of Chamberlain's Pain Balm," says John G. Bisher, Gillam, Ind. This liniment is also without an equal for sprains and bruises. It is for sale by Shoults & Co.

England's First Organ.

Elfeg, bishop of Winchester during the reign of Alfred the Great, is reputed to have procured an organ for his cathedral. It was the largest instrument then known, having 400 pipes divided among ten keys, supplied by wind from twenty-six pairs of bellows and requiring the services of no fewer than seventy blowers. Judging from this, the Winchester organ either came from Germany or was built upon a German model, for in that country, until much later, the wind was provided by a species of treadmill arrangement whereon the blowers gripped a bar, each working two pairs of bellows, like those of our smiths, with their feet.—London Queen.

Splitting Paper.

Very often it is worth knowing how to split a sheet of paper. Suppose you had an article which was printed on both sides and you desired to paste it in your scrapbook. You would paste it between two sheets of blank paper and, when nearly dry, draw these apart. You will have half of the printed sheet on each, and by the use of moisture you can readily detach them.

Three of Them.

One word in the English language in which the vowels occur in regular sequence is "facetious." Is there another?—Rochester Post-Express.

Ever hear of the word "abstemious?"—Cleveland Leader.

What is the matter with "arsenious?"—New York Tribune.

Autobiographies.

All autobiographies are lies. No man is bad enough to tell the truth about himself during his lifetime, and no man is good enough to tell the truth to posterity in a document which he suppresses until there is nobody left alive to contradict him.—George Bernard Shaw.

Woke Him Up.

Bashful Beaumont—Er—I—er—dreamt I—er—kissed you last night. What's that a sign of?

Modest Maiden—Well, it's a sign that you're more sensible asleep than awake.

They Fall Short.

Foreigner—Are the earnings of your household servants large as a rule? American—No; not nearly so large as their pay.—Pittsburg Post.

He who knows only his own side of the case knows little of that.—Mill.

Abcess

ABCESSES, with few exceptions, are indicative of constipation or debility. W. H. Harrison, Cleveland, Miss., writes, Aug. 15, 1902: "I want to say a word of praise for Ballard's Snow Liniment. I stepped on a nail, which caused the cords in my leg to contract and an abcess to rise in my knee, and the doctor told me that I would have a stiff leg, so one day I went to J. F. Lord's drug store (who is now in Denver, Colo.) He recommended a bottle of Snow Liniment; I got a 50c size, and it cured my leg. It is the best liniment in the world." Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Birds on Attack.

Birds display great skill and cunning in the chase, in attack and in guarding themselves from injury during the struggle for supremacy. The secretary bird is the inveterate enemy and unfailing pursuer of the snake. All sorts, even the most venomous, he hunts with a zest that is at once interesting and amusing. The snake flees from its foe, who follows, watching every opportunity for a blow. When the reptile turns the bird uses one of his wings as a shield and strikes with his foot. The snake buries its fangs in the wing, but leaves the poison in the plumage, and the bird escapes unhurt. Repeated blows from the powerful claw confuse and disable the snake, and at last it falls, to be at once dispatched by thrusts of the sharp beak into its head. The bird then tosses his victim into the air and, catching it as it falls, swallows it.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

This is a medicine of great worth and merit. Try it when you have a cough or cold and you are certain to be pleased with the quick relief which it affords. It is pleasant to take and can always be depended upon. For sale by Shoults & Co.

The thermometer registered 95 degrees in the shade in this place Wednesday last.

Beautiful Women

Plump cheeks, flushed with the soft glow of health and a pure complexion, make all women beautiful. Take a small dose of Herbine after each meal; it will prevent constipation and help digest what you have eaten. Mrs. Wm. M. Stroud, Midlothian, Tex writes, May 31, 1901: "We have used Herbine in our family for eight years, and found it to be the best medicine we ever used for constipation, bilious fever and malaria." Sold by L. S. Simmons.

The summer visitor still lingers in this valley.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Aids Nature

Medicines that aid nature are always most effectual. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It allays the cough, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration, opens the secretions, and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. It is famous for its cures over a large part of the civilized world. Thousands have testified of it superior excellence. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia. For sale by Shoults & Co.

W. H. Ward, a traveling man from San Francisco, dropped dead in Petaluma on Friday of last week.

Sprains

S. A. Read, Cisco, Tex., writes, March 11, 1901: My wrist was sprained so badly by a fall that it was useless, and after using several remedies that failed to give relief, used Ballard's Snow Liniment, and was cured. I earnestly recommend it to any one suffering from sprains." Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Neglected Colds

Every part of the mucous membrane, the nose, throat, ears, head and lungs, etc., are subjected to disease and blight from neglected colds. Ballard's Horehound Syrup is a pleasant and effective remedy. W. Akendrick, Valley Mills, Tex., writes, I have used Ballard's Horehound Syrup for coughs and throat troubles; it is a pleasant and most effective remedy." Sold by L. S. Simmons.
